ERRATA

Article 5. “Aesthetics versus Function. What matters to Office Employees?”

It says: “…interest due to their improtant fo(e.g. Becker & Steele, 1995; Beehr, 1995; Bodin Danielsson & Bodin, 2008, 2009; de Croon, Sluter, Kuier & Frings-Dresen, 2005; Sundstrom, Town,Rice, Osborn & Brill, 1994; Veitch, 1996; Wineman, 1982). The focus r organizations’ survival in competitive and constance changing global markets In spite of this, a more profound…”

It should say: “…interest due to their importance for organization survival in a competitive and constantly changing global markets (Amabile, 1989; Becker, Sims, & Schoss, 2003, et al.; Bell, Greene, Fischer, & Baum, 2001; Miller, 2002; Mitchell McCoy & Evans, 2002; Stokols, Clitheroe, & Zmuidzinas, 2002). In spite of this a more profound…”

It says: One respondent described the receptionist as ‘the spider in the net’ who knows everything that goes on in the office. Some were used to having a manned reception, but did not miss it anymore.”

It should say: “One respondent described the receptionist as ‘the spider in the net’ who knows everything that goes on at the office. Those who were used to having a manned reception, but did not anymore, missed it.”

Page 20. Major Finding
It says: “2) Differences in Focus: Respondents in individual or smaller workspaces and more flexible open plan offices focused mainly on work itself, whereas the focus in large open plan offices and in some more flexible was on the social environment at work.”

It should say: “2) Differences in Focus: Respondents in individual or smaller workspaces and more flexible open plan offices focused mainly on work itself, whereas the focus in a large open plan offices was on the social environment at work.”